

We all have our individual differences. Diversity in society is wonderful and respectful. It is also full of underlying beauty, love and kindness.

In our society, there are a variety of ways to meet various people's individual needs. The majority may follow fixed routes, such as taking the train or buses. There are people who ride the bicycle. Despite being slower than the majority, they appreciate the pace and lifestyle. There are people who walk, and enjoy every step of the journey.

Some others take a different path from the majority- they leave the land, brave the wind and waves to sail over the sea. Some seek to soar into the sky.

None of us have identical navigation plans, be it by way of vessel, speed, direction, and the capacity of passengers each can carry. Each of us go on our own unique missions.

Embrace the beauty of diversity in the society and respect every individual difference in the community. Most importantly, seek to empower every individual on their unique mission in life. With this, each and everyone of us can contribute to society, with dignity.
